RIGHT TO FOOD BANGLADESH

Right to Food is a Human Right

Context

Bangladesh has witnessed astounding success in reducing poverty and hunger. Poverty in Bangladesh declined from 56.7% in 1991-92 to 31.5% in 2010 to 24.3% in 2016. However, 24.3% of the people (40 million) are still in poverty and 12.9% in extreme poverty. Bangladesh has adopted a comprehensive Food Policy and a fairly large social safety net program, but they have apparently proved inadequate to force down the poverty rate as quickly as expected. Inadequate budgetary allocation, weak management and irregularities in the social safety net programs remain major challenges as far as ensuring food security for all is concerned. It is evident that more needs to be done to expedite the eradication of poverty and hunger. That is exactly what the “Right to Food and Nutrition Campaign” is striving to achieve.

The campaign is an initiative of Right to Food Bangladesh (RtF BD), an umbrella network comprising of civil society organizations and networks, peasants’ organizations, trade unions, women organizations, youth organizations, researchers, academia, marginalized people and individual among others. The network emerged in 2015 following the ‘South Asia Right to Food- SARF Conference’ held in Dhaka, Bangladesh. Since inception, besides countrywide campaign and policy advocacy on the right to food and nutrition, the network has been promoting social security program, agriculture, safe food, and mobilizing opinion against food wastage & about food crisis etc. WAVE Foundation has been providing secretariat support to RtF BD’s programs.

While the campaign has been running for the last 18 months starting in early 2018, it gathered serious momentum in the second half of the year (July to December 2018). The approaching general elections towards the end of the year gave the campaign a sense of urgency. As a result the campaign grew intense with a series of advocacy meeting, lobbying with the minister and MPs and mass gathering around the demand for framing the Right to Food Act.

GOAL

Ensuring the right to food and nutrition for citizens and especially for the poor, marginalized, women and children.

OBJECTIVES

- To encourage the government in taking specific steps towards formulating the ‘Right to Food Act’.
- To engage the major political parties and stakeholders in formulating the ‘Right to Food Act’.
- To promote active citizenship at all sphere of the society including students, youths and women in order to establish Right to Food and Nutrition for all.

The campaign takes shape

The campaign came up with some significant decisions related to course of actions while Right to Food Bangladesh (RtF BD) organized 'Right to Food Conference' on 31 March 2018 at Krishibid Institution Bangladesh, Dhaka. The daylong conference, divided into three sessions, included the 2nd Annual General Meeting-AGM. One of the major decisions of the AGM was to launch a special campaign centering the national elections to engage and influence the political parties for incorporating 'Right to Food Act' as an election agendum in their manifesto. The campaign also planned to organize dialogues with the candidates in some constituencies and raise mass awareness at all levels in support of the movement.

The journey acquires momentum

The campaign starts to gain intensity through an event on 25 July 2018 at the National Museum Auditorium, Shahbag. The Right to Food Bangladesh (RtF BD) organized the event that saw some 650 participants representing 525 NGOs, networks, educational institutions, youth, women and farmers' organizations, trade unions and professional groups. The participants came from 50 districts of Bangladesh.

Three million people signed up for Right to Food Act

One of the major highlights of the campaign has been the involvement of people. Indeed, the campaign draws its strength from the huge support of the common people mobilized by the RtF BD. The signature campaign kicked off in July 2018 and in three months more than thirty lac people from around the country expressed their support for the campaign by putting in their signature. The signature collection effort was driven by some 975 organizations. This effort, on the one hand, helped the campaign spread all over Bangladesh and, on the other hand, gave the campaign a huge boost.

Food is a right, not charity

Food assistance provided under social safety net program or other programs by the government is often viewed as a “support” by various stakeholders. This line of thinking has to change. Having adequate and nutritious food must be considered a right, observed development experts as they discussed the matter in different seminars and meetings hosted by the RtF BD Network.

“There is not adequate resource in the budget for the social safety net. In reality only 12-25% of the beneficiaries get the real benefit out of it. To address this problem this program needs to be planned and executed with a rights-based approach as enshrined in our constitution. One way to make it possible is to enact the Right to Food Act.”

- Dr. Qazi Kholiquzzaman Ahmad,
Chairman, Right to Food Bangladesh and PKSF

More than a thousand organizations joined the movement

The successful run of the RtF campaign would not be possible without the involvement of hundreds of organizations, networks and individuals from all over the country. As the campaign marched ahead it drew more and more organizations in its fold, gathered pace in the process and spread all over the country. The campaign is now more than 1,000 members strong and undoubtedly a mighty force that has no lack of commitment as far as attaining its goal is concerned – the right to food for all Bangladeshis.

Commitment from the Minister

One of the milestones for the RtF campaign has been the commitment from none other than the Minister of Food Sadhan Chandra Majumder MP. At a national seminar titled “Development target of the country: Right to food and nutrition issue” held on 24 April 2019 at CIRDAP Auditorium, the minister was unequivocal in his support for the Right to Food Act.

“I need to understand the structure and substance of the proposed law. If it does not clash with any existing laws, I am all for it. When it is raised in the cabinet before the Prime Minister I will leave no stone unturned to see it through,” promised the minister.

Garnering support of policymakers

The RtF BD Network has continuously lobbied with the relevant ministry officials besides keeping in touch with the public representatives. The network leaders met the minister and secretary of the Ministry of Food in person as well as other high officials like Director General, Directorate of Food, to make them aware of the campaign and urge them to lend their weight behind the cause.

Building consensus around the table

The campaign throughout its journey has sought to engage the political parties and decision makers. With the 11th parliamentary elections just a month away, the RtF BD network considered it a good time to meet the political parties and share their demand. On 26 November 2018 the Right to Food Bangladesh in partnership with ICCO Cooperation and Prothom Alo therefore organized a roundtable discussion to cultivate a consensus around the campaign's demand for establishing the Right to Food Act. They called for including the matter in their election manifesto. Senior leaders of Awami League, Bangladesh Workers' Party, JSD, Jatiya Oikya Prokriya took part in the discussion and expressed their support for the campaign.

Bringing candidates of parliamentary elections onboard

The campaign has prioritized interacting with the political parties to achieve the campaign's goal. While the campaign continued lobbying with the political party leadership at the national level through roundtable discussion and meeting with ministers and MPs, they were also active in the district and local level. In the run up to the national elections the campaign carried out some 30 rounds of dialogue involving the candidates and the voters in the district level. The campaign succeeded to extract promise from the candidates to play their part in enacting the Right to Food Act.

Self-sufficiency, bumper production and right to food

This year (2019) farmers across the country suffered huge loss as the price of rice plummeted on the heels of bumper production. It once again brought forth the weakness in market management and the lack of an efficient coping mechanism on the part of the government when there is a major surplus or deficit in rice production. In a national dialogue titled "Fair prices of agro-products: challenges and future direction" held on 28 May 2019, speakers urged the government to buy additional amount of paddy and compensate the farmers. They observed that subsidy to farmers, linking farmers to the market, keeping the middlemen at bay, and a functional transportation of agro-products are critical to the country's food security.

Celebrating World Food Day

The campaign took advantage of different national and international days to reach out to more and more people with its demand. As each year, World Food Day 2018 was one such occasion that the campaign observed both at the national and district level. Activities included mass gathering and rally alongside submission of Memorandum to the District Commissioner.

'Right to Food' moves closer to reality

Apart from the events and programs mentioned here there has been a large number of smaller scale and local level events throughout the last 18 months or so. These efforts have helped educate the public and encouraged them to rally behind a movement that has direct impact on them. The campaign has matured in the recent months and now enjoys support from a broad range of stakeholders. It also seems to have the political backing that is crucial to establishing the Right to Food Act.
